States' Funds for Jobless Hit New Top

Reserves Now High Enough for Claims That May Arise.

WASHINGTON. — State reserve funds for paying unemployment compensation reached an all-time record high of $7,143,428,000 on September 30, social security administration has announced.

An official said the size of the reserve fund started increasing again steady through 17 months of heavy payments to unemployed workers after V-J Day.

It is big enough now, according to experts, to meet any benefit claims that might arise in the forseeable future.

The new climb in the unemployment reserve fund was disclosed as a 15-man advisory group to the senate finance committee called meetings here to begin a study of the coverage, rates and benefits of unemployment compensation, old age insurance and public assistance.

This group, headed by Edward R. Stettinius, former secretary of state, will make recommendations for overhauling the whole program.

Huge Strato Chamber Tests Supersonic Flight Conditions

The wraps are about to be pulled off the world's largest and most modern stratosphere chamber, recently completed in Great Britain. It will be able to test flying conditions for planes in the era now unfolding of supersonic flight far above the weather.

This chamber consists of an all-steel cylinder 50 feet long and 25 feet in diameter. It will be able to reproduce temperature and pressure conditions up to an altitude of 70,000 feet. The complete structure, built and welded throughout, with half-inch thick plate, weighs 215 tons. It is reinforced with external rings six inches deep and three-quarters of an inch thick.

A powerful refrigeration plant can reduce the temperature inside the test chamber to 70 degrees centigrade below freezing point (—94 degrees Fahrenheit) and even lower. Special fans installed within the chamber can raise the temperature to at least 70 degrees Centigrade (159 degrees Fahrenheit).

The vast range covered by this test chamber can be gauged from the fact that the lowest temperature ever naturally recorded in the world was —56 degrees Centigrade (approximately —67 degrees Fahrenheit) registered at Verkhoyansk, Siberia, in February, 1892.

British May Trim House Of Lords by 600 Peers

LONDON. — Conservative party sources said about 600 British peers would lose their hereditary seats in the House of Lords under reform proposals considered by Conservative leaders as counter to the Labor government's plan to curb the upper chamber's powers.

A committee of Conservative peers is considering a proposal to limit membership to about 300 lords with outstanding public service records.

Clue in Polio Fight Seen in College Work

Doctor Reports Antivirus Drugs May Combat Disease.

NEW YORK. — Some new clues toward possible discovery of drugs to combat virus diseases were reported by Dr. Conrad A. Elvehjem of University of Wisconsin.

Viruses cause many different kinds of diseases, among them infantile paralysis and influenza in humans.

Dr. Elvehjem mentioned the possibility of antivirus drugs in describing recent progress in nutrition to the midyear meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' association.

A lack of vitamin B-1 (thiamine) makes mice almost completely resistant to paralysis from viruses closely related to the virus of infantile paralysis, he said. When the mice had adequate amounts of the B-1, almost 100 per cent of them got the paralysis.

Two other vitamins, riboflavin and pantothenic acid, gave similar but less striking results. Deficiencies of potassium and phosphorus in their diets also increased their resistance to the paralysis.

More resistance also was shown, he continued, when mice were fed diets deficient in tryptophane, which is one of the amino acids or building blocks out of which proteins are made. This may indicate that the virus has a preference or priority for certain amino acids, he said. This would not be surprising because the virus is composed largely of protein material.

A logical suggestion, Dr. Elvehjem said, is that certain chemicals similar to the tryptophane might be used to alter or modify the development of the virus.

"There are undoubtedly many difficulties and obstacles in a program of this kind, but even if practical applications do not come out of their work, much fundamental knowledge must accumulate," he said.

Advance of Insects Stymied by Science

Man's Intelligence Termed Only Safeguard in Struggle.

LONDON. — The dinosaurs had their day, 60 million years ago, and fishes had theirs millions of years before that. Mammals had a golden age and today is the age of man, the highest mammal.

Many seers, professional and otherwise, have predicted that the next form of life to take over will be the insects. Only man's intelligence, so entomologists believe, stands between the decline and fall of mankind and the rise of bugs.

Dr. V. B. Wigglesworth of Cambridge university, one of Britain's outstanding entomologists, told a science survey audience, reassuringly, that scientists are doing their best to provide more efficient weapons in the struggle against insects. The basic element for eventual success, he warned, is knowledge.

"In the practical art of killing insects," he said, "there comes a time when we find that our basic capital of knowledge is exhausted. It is the pure sciences which provide that working capital."

New fields of inquiry are being opened up, Wigglesworth said

Palomar Telescope Mirror Gets an Aluminum Overcoat

PASADENA, CALIF.—The $600,000 mirror, 200 inches in diameter which is the "eye" for the world's largest telescope at Mount Palomar observatory, has been aluminized and tested for size in the telescope cradle, California Institute of Technology astronomers announced.

The 14½-ton concave surface, which took more than 11 years to make and is ground to an accuracy of two-millionths of an inch, was conveyed from Pasadena to 5,500 foot high Mount Palomar, 162 miles south of here. After its arrival it was immersed in a vacuum tank and received a thin coating of aluminum to give it proper reflective properties.

The huge disk then was hoisted into the lower end of the telescope tube, replacing a concrete block which had served as a dummy modal during mechanical trials

Watchdog Quits Hotel Job To Join Marauding Deer

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. — The manager of the Arrowhead Hot Springs resort, bought Fearless, a tough watchdog, to scare away the wild deer from the nearby hills.

Fearless lived up to his name the first two days, performing as ordered. Then he decided to play too — joining the deer in drinking from the hotel's swimming pool and digging up the carrots in the garden.

Military Souvenirs Willed To Britons by Gen. Hamilton

LONDON.—Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's will, just published, tells a colorful story of a soldier who spent 75 years in the service of his country.

To Winston Churchill the general left a black Buddha saved from a deserted temple at Mandalay. Hamilton's nephew received a lock of hair from Mary Queen of Scots and a broadsword presented to the general by an emperor of Japan.

Hamilton died last October at the age of 94. Among other bequests were a carpet from the king of Siam, a gold box from the king of Romania, a centerpiece of porcelain from the German kaiser, a dagger that Hamilton took from the body of an Afghan mullah whom he killed in a duel in 1879 and the ivory hilted sword he wore at the battle of the Dardanelles in World War I.

Robin Befriends Chicagoan For Beef and Sip of Beer

CHICAGO.—A bird in good hands won't go back to a bush.

This seems to fit the strange case of Nicodemus, the robin. He fell out of a tree in August and the Charles Chantells took him into their home.

He developed a taste for ground beef and an occasional sip of beer. Now he spurns worms, shuns other birds and, like the man who came to dinner, he won't leave.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director, Named Knight by King George

WASHINGTON. — The British embassy announced that King George VI has appointed J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, an honorary knight commander of the civil division of the Order of the British empire for "outstanding contribution to the allied victory in the field of intelligence and security."

Landlord Draws Fine for Jamming Tenants in House

27 Families Live Under One Roof

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" was a piker compared to Oren W. Breidenthal, 3400 Norledge avenue, a landlord who permitted 27 families to live in his old, rambling residence which, according to zoning regulations, is limited to two families.

The landlord was fined $75 in Municipal court after the city building inspector, William E. Gill, listed 27 families renting quarters in the residences.

Gill's investigation followed complaints filed with him by representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. They reported that the over-crowded structure was tenanted by G. I families.

Here is what Gill found on his inspection:

Four families in the basement. Five families on the first floor. Five families on the second floor. Six families in the attic. Six families in the barn. One family in a trailer on the lawn.

Gill told Judge Earle W. Frost that there was only one bathroom and two toilets for the 27 families; that a furnace in the basement was not in use and tenants were heating with their gas cooking stoves; that the electric wiring was exposed and that only thin wallboard partitions separated most of the families.

Windows Broken

Several window panes were out and rags and paper filled the holes, according to Gill. There were rats in the building and third floor tenants were throwing waste out the windows, he added.

Several months ago notice was given Breidenthal to evacuate all but two families to conform with zoning regulations, according to Gill. The property consists of 9,900 square feet of lot space. Zoning regulations call for only one family to each 5,000 square feet there.

The third floor, or attic tenants, get their water from a spigot in the hall wall, through which a tiny trickle flows, but only if water is not being used on the first two floors.

For the top floor families there are two means of escape in case of fire. One is a steel ladder running up the outside of the house. A narrow corridor leads to that ladder.

"We couldn't carry our children down that," Mrs. Morgan commented. "We'd be lucky to get ourselves."

The second fire escape is a trap door in the hall, opening onto the second floor. By the trap door rests a ladder, but it hardly reaches from the second floor to the attic.

Charges Filed

Breidenthal was charged on three counts, violation of the zoning act, violation of health regulations, and violation of the building code. Breidenthal had only 15 tenants when he appeared in court, according to the testimony.

M. F. Avis, representative of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, testified he was trying to find quarters for the remaining 15 families. He said he believed all would be out in 10 days.

Breidenthal told Frost he had employed an electrical contractor to wire the building properly and had hired a rat exterminator. He also informed the court he had a petition before the zoning board to permit 10 families to occupy the property. The barn has been vacated, he said.

Joyriding G.I.'s Steal B-17 For Jaunt Over Mountains

BALBOA, CANAL ZONE.—Two happy-go-lucky army sergeants took an unauthorized 1,700 mile joy ride in a Flying Fortress across some of the roughest terrain in the world—without having an, flying lessons.

Military authorities said they landed the B-17 at Caracas after a flight across the Andes from the Galapagos islands. The islands are astride the equator, 730 miles west of South America.

Both said they had observed pilots in flight in 17 missions over Europe and with the air force in New Guinea—and it looked easy.

So, instead of servicing the Galapagos' one plane for a possible mercy flight at daybreak the two sergeants said they set off for greener pastures.

One of them handled the controls the whole way—just did everything he had seen pilots do. Climbing to 20,000 feet to clear mountains, they headed for Waller field on the island of Trinidad, but with only 500 gallons of gasoline left, they landed at Caracas.

Officers said they were astounded that two untrained men could fly the four engined plane over the Andes. They were more amazed when the untrained pilot said he made most of the flight on instruments because of thick weather. He had a little trouble getting the big plane to land properly he said. He had to try four times before he got the air speed down to a safe margin. Then he made a good landing.

IN MEMORIAM:

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear daddy, A. A. Baldwin (Real) who died one year ago today Apr. 12, 1947.
Today recalls sad memories
Of my dear one gone to rest.
The one who thinks of him today
Is the one who loved him best.

No one knows my longing,
Few have seen me weep.
I shed my tears with an aching heart,
When others are asleep.

For days and nights you bore your pain,
To wait for cure but all in vain.
But God alone knew what was best
And took you home to give you peace and rest.

I miss you so much and always will there's a vacant place none can fill.
But to those who have parents
Treat them with tender care,
You'll never know the longing,
Until when you speak and they are not there.

—Sadly missed by Daughter.
